OF MANY THINGS (By Ambrose Hills)

38c Slump

I'm a great believer in advertising, so perhaps I've grabbed at this story because it proves my point.

Alan Donnahoe, a tough-minded newspaper-man, took a sharp look at the business slump in the United States (the same one that has been reflected here) and boiled it down to figures we can all understand.

Consumer spending dropped a billion dollars. Sounds like a lot, doesn't it? But when you shake it up and look at it, it means only 38c per family per week. American families tightened their purse strings to that extent—and stores quickly began to liquidate their inventories. Americans weren't tightening purse strings because they didn't have the money—they were adding to their net savings at the rate of 20 billions a year.

What is needed, then, to start things humming again in the U.S.A. and Canada

Very simple, says Donnahoe. If every family starts to spend at the old rate again—another 38c per week—we're off and running.

Now this may be an over-simplification of the problem. Simple or not, it makes a great deal of sense. And it presents a challenge to those who are in the business of advertising—whether buying it, selling it or writing it.

I visited a small Manitoba town the other day where business is humming. This town, Steinbach, hasn't a very large population, but it has all the zip and zest of a city. Store fronts are bright, there are smart advertising signs everywhere, and the local weekly newspaper is full of clever advertising. I doubt that the merchants of Steinbach pay much attention to recession talk.

Advertising has helped this town, there is not a bit of doubt about that. Advertising can do wonders—I've seen it happen again and again. It bothers me when people who should know better treat advertising with disdain, or attack it as "commercialism".

I believe it is time we all stopped advertising the so-called recession. Instead we should start to advertise our tremendous resources, our abundance of good things, and our faith in a big future for Canada.

Gloom, lack of confidence and fear are the only things that can stop us. Confidence, good advertising and smart merchandising can keep the wheels spinning in any community. After all, it was only a 38c slump.

Let's trade it in on a 50c boom!

Your Employment Column

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Following are some questions—with answers—which may be of interest to you:

Q—If an employee who maintains a home in another city is requested to return home owing to family illness would he be entitled to unemployment insurance benefits if he complied and left his employment?

A—Benefit is paid only to persons who are ready, able and willing to immediately accept suitable employment. If a person is not able to accept work because of illness in his family, he is not entitled to benefit.

Q—If an employee who has temporarily left his home and wife for employment in another city subsequently finds he is unable financially to keep up with living expenses at both ends, is he entitled to unemployment insurance benefits if he left his employment and returned home?

A—This would depend on whether the facts are such that just cause for leaving the job can be established. If there are no exceptional circumstances disqualification for a maximum of six weeks would likely be imposed.

Q—In the case of regular benefit the amount of benefit is based on the average rate of the last 30 weekly contributions made in the 104 weeks prior to date of claim. What is the amount of benefit based on in the case of seasonal benefit when there may have been only 15 (the minimum) weekly contributions in all?

A—In this case the rate of seasonal benefit is based on the average rate of the contribution weeks since the end of the previous March.

Q—Is it possible for someone who has been steadily employed for 11 years and paid into the unemployment insurance fund, to collect it when he goes into business for himself and is no longer collecting a wage?

A—A claimant who is employed on his own account is not unemployed and therefore is not eligible for unemployment insurance benefit.

Q—I work in Montreal and earn $175 an hour. At 40 hours a week this gives me a salary of $70 a week. I pay for unemployment insurance stamps of the highest denomination, those of 60c. When I lost my job in January I received only $21 a week, whereas I should have received $23. My co-workers who became unemployed at the same time as I have been receiving $23 a week, yet they receive the same salary as I do. What is the amount drawn by persons paying only 50c a week and by those paying 60c a week?

A—The rate of benefit is based on the average of the last 30 contribution weeks, immediately prior to a claim. Thus if the earnings for each of those 30 weeks were from $45 to $50.99 the average weekly contribution would be 52c and the weekly rate of benefit $19. If the earnings were $57 and over in each of the 30 weeks, the weekly contribution would be 60c and the weekly rate would be $23 (single). It is likely that you had some broken time during the 30 weeks prior to your claim so that your contributions did not average 60c per week throughout.

Q—If I am unemployed and receiving unemployment insurance benefits can I move to another area in the hope of finding a job without losing my benefits?

A—You may if you first inform the local office to which you are reporting of your intention. It is pointed out, however, that the employment service with a full knowledge of employment needs throughout the country is at your disposal and it would be well to consult with an employment officer before going to any expense in travelling around the country.

Q—I have been receiving seasonal benefit since January 1 and I won't be getting work until April 15. How many stamps will I need to qualify for benefit in December, 1958, if I happen to be out of work in the construction field?

A—To qualify for seasonal benefit in December, 1958, you must have at least 15 contribution weeks after March 30, 1958.

Q—Please tell me if a stamp which represents a working week is the equivalent of a benefit week or just a day to which I would be entitled.

A—Each weekly stamp that can be counted to arrive at the length of entitlement represents a half-week's benefit.

Marriage must be like a strong onion . . . men praise it with tears in their eyes.

THE DIESEL FIREMAN DISPUTE ON CANADIAN PACIFIC

TWO YEARS AGO, in April 1956 the Firemen's Union demanded wage increases and other benefits involving substantial increased costs.

AT THE SAME TIME Canadian Pacific proposed that, as firemen were not necessary, they should no longer be carried on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service.

CANADIAN PACIFIC also proposed dropping both arbitrary wage payments for which no service was rendered and differential wage rates in mountain territory.

IN DECEMBER 1956 a Federal Board of Conciliation recommended substantial wage increases and other benefits. At the same time, it found that firemen were not required on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service and made provision for protection of their employment. It also found that payment of arbitraries and mountain differential should be modified.

CANADIAN PACIFIC accepted the Conciliation Board's report.

THE FIREMEN'S UNION rejected the report and called a strike on January 2, 1957.

THE STRIKE WAS ENDED on January 11, 1957 on the following basis:—

1. Canadian Pacific agreed to pay the substantial wage increases retroactive to April 1 of the previous year and other benefits recommended by the Conciliation Board.
2. The Union and Canadian Pacific agreed to refer the DIESEL ISSUE as well as payment of arbitraries and mountain differential to a ROYAL COMMISSION.
3. The Union and Canadian Pacific agreed to negotiate these issues in the light of and immediately following the publication of the ROYAL COMMISSION'S Report.

THE KELLOCK ROYAL COMMISSION of three senior judges devoted ten months to hearing 119 witnesses and, at the request of the Firemen's Union, made on-the-ground investigations across Canada and also made observations on four major European railway systems. It was the most extensive and thorough investigation in the history of labour relations in Canada.

IN ITS UNANIMOUS REPORT published February 4, 1958 the ROYAL COMMISSION found that:—

1. Firemen are not required on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service on Canadian Pacific either for safety or any other reason.
2. The proposal of Canadian Pacific for protecting firemen from loss of employment and seniority is fair and generous.
3. Arbitraries have become unrealistic and should be dropped and payment made on the basis of service rendered.
4. Mountain differential payments should be dropped and replaced by valley differential.

CANADIAN PACIFIC accepted the report of the KELLOCK ROYAL COMMISSION as it had undertaken to do when the Commission was appointed.

THE UNION rejected the report, stating that nothing in it was acceptable to them. They did so knowing that not one fireman would suffer loss of railway employment who was hired before the proposal to discontinue firemen on freight and yard diesels was made in April, 1956. All across Canada there are less than 100 firemen hired after that date and now working who face possible lay-off.

ALL EFFORTS of Canadian Pacific to settle the dispute through negotiations with the Firemen's Union have failed.

FOR TWO YEARS firemen have enjoyed substantial wage increases. During these two years action on the diesel issue has been postponed while the Union had every contention it could advance investigated by two enquiries.

CANADIAN PACIFIC has a duty to the public to operate the railway efficiently and economically.

CANADIAN PACIFIC, to fulfill this duty, has given notice to the Firemen's Union that the findings of the KELLOCK ROYAL COMMISSION will take effect on May 11, 1958.

THIS ACTION is in accordance with Federal labour law.

Success Marks First Workshop

More Alberta teachers will have an opportunity of attending Junior Red Cross workshops as a result of the two-day rally which concluded at the Banff School of Fine Arts, Friday, April 11.

Commenting on the success of the initial venture, Col. D. H. Tomlinson, Alberta Red Cross Commissioner, remarked that the workshop had created history and proven so worthwhile that Red Cross would favor sponsoring similar teacher sessions in the future.

More than 40 teachers and principals from points in Alberta attended the session which was aimed at providing information on the scope and educational value of the Junior Red Cross program.

Despite differences which may exist in the principles of education as compared to those in welfare work the two fields can merge successfully in the opinion of Mr. Reubin Baetz, Assistant Commissioner, Canadian Red Cross Society, and guest speaker at the rally. In today's highly professionalized society there was a tendency to lose sight of humanitarian impulses Mr. Baetz felt, and stressed the need for educationalists to foster attitudes of charity and social concern in children. He warned, however, that care must be taken not to develop snobbery with such attitudes.

Wide knowledge of the past and present together with the ability to relay such information for the benefit of others was a necessary part of training for citizenship in a democracy teachers were told by Dr. T. G. Finn, Calgary Faculty of Education. He urged more emphasis on reading, writing and speaking in the educational program.

Junior Red Cross has a unique position in Canada's education picture, Dr. Finn felt, as with its close affiliation with the schools and its resources as part of a world wide youth organization the group could be of great help in developing healthy attitudes in Canada's youth.

Still just two women in federal govt.

OTTAWA, Ont. (cp) — When parliament opens in May with an unprecedented number of Progressive Conservatives in government seats, there will be no changes in the women's section.

Only two women — both former members — made the grade March 31 and won seats in the 265-member House of Commons.

State Secretary Ellen Fairclough, appointed last year as the first woman federal cabinet minister, and Margaret Aitken, both did themselves proud in the contest for votes.

The women, both Progressive Conservatives, topped the 10,000 mark in pluralities over male opponents. In Hamilton West, Mrs. Fairclough won handily with a plurality of 13,885, more than double the margin by which she won in 1957 in York-Humber, Toronto newspaper columnist, Margaret Aitken, piled up a plurality of 15,082.

The small number of women candidates — 21 among 831 candidates across the country — and the fact that only two were returned to parliament provides food for thought.

The Commons, along with provincial legislatures, and elective municipal offices, have never been swamped with women members. One reason, of course, is that only a handful of women ever run for the posts.

And what happens to those who do make a bid for parliament, for instance? Well, some people — including Charlotte Whitton, defeated conservative candidate in Ottawa West — contend that women too often are put in the "slaughterhouse ridings", meaning constituencies in which the party figures defeat is virtually certain, and where no man wants to run.

However, the capital city's former mayor gave Liberal candidate George McRath a close race and missed winning the seat — held by Mr. McRath since 1940 — by only 1,000.

In the west Mrs. Jessie Caldwell, able president of the National Federation of Liberal Women, fell far behind victorious Conservative Harry Jones in Saskatoon.

Finds turnips valuable crop

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (cp) — Frank Moore has a good word about turnips.

Mr. Moore, who describes himself as something of a turnip fan, had just finished loading 15 tons of solid vegetables aboard a freight car.

"Turnips have it all over potatoes," he told a reporter. "They are sown July 15-30 and must be thinned about the middle of July. After a cultivator loosens up the soil, they are jerked from the ground by workers who lop off their tops and toss them into a truck."

"They are easy to harvest," he said. Mr. Moore, president of the Prince-Albert horticultural society, has been trying to convince district farmers they should form a turnip co-operative.

"They're missing a good bet in not growing more turnips," he said pointing out that 14 to 16 tons of turnips can be harvested from an acre. An acre of turnips usually nets a farmer $700.

Car loading slipping

While nature-lovers eagerly await spring's first crocus, economists and railway executives scan statistics on rail car loadings, say Jack McArthur in The Financial Post.

Both groups are looking for the same thing.

A sign that better days are coming.

Car loadings — a major economic signpost — have been running below the year previous for many months.

This reflection of easing business conditions has squeezed railway earnings painfully. This comes to be the rail industry's consensus on the car loading climate in the future.

Chilly, probably, in the next two months. After that things may warm up.

Women peers in England

There's rumbling and grumbling in England's House of Lords where women will soon join the ranks.

The tables have been turned and along with the hereditary peers the upper chamber now will have peers and peeresses appointed for life.

Despite the mutterings about the upheaval of tradition, the door to women is expected to open next month with the formal assent by a woman — the Queen.

STIRLING (hns) - The April meeting of the Warner County Council of Home and School Associations was held here recently with James Cousins, dean of the Lethbridge Junior College, guest speaker.

Dean Cousins spoke of the tremendous growth of junior colleges on this continent and stated these various colleges take care of education between high school and university. Their aim, he told the meeting, is to supply community needs.

Dean Cousins pointed out that seven and one-half per cent of students finishing high school attend university, crowding facilities. Establishment of junior college extends educational opportunities.
